

THANK YOU!

Dear Dunstant,

On behalf of our entire team and every participant of SOUL Challenge – thank you. We’re truly grateful you joined us as a guest speaker, trainer, and facilitator.

Your session wasn’t just a guest appearance. For many, it became a moment of clarity – structured, grounded, meaningful. You helped participants see how to turn their own stories into messages that actually resonate and move others, while staying real and honest.

The phrase “It’s not about you – it’s about the people who come after you” became a turning point for many. And the “borscht and small portions” metaphor helped us all realize that you don’t have to say too much to say what matters – you just have to say the right thing.

We especially want to thank you for the depth of respect and attention you brought to the Ukrainian community. Your support was felt – not only in your words, but in the way you crafted your slides, chose your examples, and communicated with care. For many Ukrainian women who have experienced loss, displacement, and constant adaptation, reclaiming their voice is not a luxury – it’s a necessity. Your calm, structured guidance and belief in each woman’s message genuinely supported that process.

We’re also grateful for how you worked with our participants – with respect, clarity, and a steady presence. It was clear you weren’t there to instruct from above, but to walk alongside – helping each person see their potential and shape it into something that speaks.

We’re glad you became part of this journey – and we hope it’s just the beginning. It would be an honor to have you join us again – in a space that values depth, clarity, and dialogue.

With gratitude and warmth,

Natalia Dikhtyar, Founder, Visionary Commander & Strategic Architect

Kate Gorlai, Chief Product Officer

And on behalf of the SOUL Team

Seeds of Unity & Love